cargo pants are officially replacing your denim this fall

by Shanna Shipin

There are few fashion trends that evoke as much suspicion as cargo pants for women. Ask someone—anyone—how they feel about them, and they'll probably raise their brows, having been reminded of suburban dads on vacation or regrettable outfits from the late '90s. It's easy to understand why people aren't usually sold on them: They're baggy and intentionally crumpled, and they often come in that divisive low-rise—but much like matching sweatsuits and "ugly" sandals, cargo pants are part of the new frontier of WFH fashion, with the coronavirus bringing a whole new lens to the comfortable "dad wardrobe." (That, and the fact that our collective angst is making the Avril Lavigne leap out in all of us.) This season's cargo pants aren't sacrificing function for form.

Check out the new styles here.

the enigma of women's clothing size inconsistencies

by Mallory Schlossberg

The world of sizes for women's clothes is bizarre. A woman could wear a size 2 in one brand's apparel, but a 6 in another.

In June, a woman posted a letter to H&M, which went viral, for not being able to fit into its size 16 jeans ... while wearing a size medium shirt.

In a recent video for Vox, a reporter tried on three different pairs of pants in the same size and three different stores — Zara, Topshop, and Forever 21 — to prove that this theory was true. Then, Vox set to find out why.

The video reveals the history of women's apparel sizing, from the first data set that determined sizing — comprised from data from poor, likely underfed Caucasian women and nixed in 1983 — to today's vanity sizing.

Sizing today is used as a market-

'm Denzel AKA CurrieGOAT and channel is all about self improvement through meaningful art.

If you watched "Art Attack" as a kid but these days more concerned with life goals than PVA to water ratios, then your in the right place.

On this YouTube channel you'll find weekly Art and Fashion videos inspired by the greatest stories of all time. The idea is to take meaning from these myths that you can build into your own life "Fools learn from experience, I prefer to lean from the experience of others"

Every week I'll be creating artwork and custom clothing that you can use to surround yourself with greatness and be the GOAT!

Great art tells stories, stories make you great!

2020 september | slackers 7

I am currently working on an assignment for my long form printing class that requires us to create a 36 page magazine for an imaginary magazine company that we have generated.

My magazine company, Slackers, is a womens' fashion magazine that specifically focuses on bottoms such as pants, shorts, skirts and the like. This is just a single spread of what I have done so far.

a sustainable brand owned by women of color

by Celeste Scott

Selva Negra is a Los Angeles-based brand combining a tomboy feel with bold feminine identity into their classic pieces. Founded by designers Kristen Gonzalez and Sam Romero, the brand is influenced by their Latina heritage, resulting in beautifully and sustainably-made soulful designs. Selva Negra's stunning wide leg pants and two-piece sets bring an exciting twist to some very calming and neutral colors. Many of these pieces can be dressed up or down, making them perfect for anyone looking to add some quality pieces to their wardrobe.
